

Landro Enterprise Edition Statement of Responsibility

Intending to purchase and install a Landro Enterprise Edition system, we acknowledge that this is an enterprise-level system requiring a certain amount of management on our part in order to successfully provide the desired end-user experience.

We have reviewed the pertinent Landro documents posted on the Landro web site: “What IT Needs to Know about Landro Enterprise,” “Landro Enterprise Edition Installation Guide” and “Landro Frequently Asked Questions.” We are aware that some of the requirements for Landro video servers conflict with common requirements or Best Practices for conventional file servers, but these requirements are nevertheless necessary for the correct operation of a Landro Enterprise System.

We understand that while the Landro division of IRIS Technologies, Inc., has a responsibility to us to provide us with a system that will function as promised and to assist us in the installation, setup and training of this system, we also have a responsibility to learn and understand the system and manage its daily operation, taking on those maintenance and internal support duties that are required of any Information Technology infrastructure.
